Descallar

- Create a school social media account and publish a post that guides students on what they need to bring for enrollment.
- Create clear enrollment guidelines that explain what students need to do during the enrollment process. Make the instructions simple and easy to understand so students will not get confused.
- During enrollment, make sure that posters and bulletin boards are clear, visible, and easy to understand so that students know where to go and which building they need to visit.

Patolot:

- The student must explain their concerns in explicit and accurate detail to avoid confusion.
- The offices must coordinate with each other, possibly by using JRU SWIT to post what each office does.
- On the other hand, there can also be only one office (possibly the registrar's office) that can give precise, detailed instructions on the steps needed to be taken by the student.
- During enrollment, instructional posters can be planted around the campus to guide students on what they need to do and bring in order to lessen redundancy. Maps or visual guides of where each office is located may also be used to help students navigate the campus.
- The school must also offer a FAQ (Frequently Asked Questions) via poster or a pinned post on their facebook page or an announcement in JRU SWIT.

Perdez:

- There should be a volunteer at the entrance that asks what their concerns are and where they should go first. By doing this, offices can avoid having to answer or hear the same question, and also avoid having students form a long line only to find out that they should go to another office first.
- There should be flowchart posters around the campus and which office answers their concerns and which office they go to first and a map beside it for students to avoid getting lost.
